what COLOR
should you paint your house?

Trusted designers tell us their favorite color combos for siding, trim work, and front doors.

“I think green goes with everything, so I like a classic gray-green on the siding, with a darker green-black on the shutters and door.”

—Kevin Walsh, Bear-Hill Interiors, Little Rock, AR

“We always fall head over heels for dark navy homes, which don’t show dirt like light ones do. A sunny yellow door really pops out against the blue.”

—Sherry and John Petersik, bloggers at Young House Love, Richmond, VA

“White is pretty traditional, but a bright green door totally changes the look, and a little sky blue above the porch is a great finishing touch.”

—John Lum, John Lum Architecture, San Francisco, CA

“I’ve used this color so often that we call it ‘Gidding Gray’ at my office. The dark shutters draw attention to the windows, sort of like mascara.”

—John Gidding, Curb Appeal: The Block
